"Weavers must be educated or imported," it was stated.

RICH NORWEGIAN DISAPPEARS FROM SHIP IN MID-OCEAN

New York—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of Thor Dahl, 20 year old Norwegian "millionaire" from the steamship Bergensford in mid-ocean ten days ago, deepens Friday when it was learned that process servers had awaited him with subpoenas when the vessel docked Thursday.

The district attorney's office explained that Dahl, with the fortune he was reported to have inherited from his father's whaling business, was wanted as a witness in connection with the charges of perjury against two detectives which grew out of the arrest of them by Mrs. Lillian P. Love, wife of a Wall Street oil operator. The detectives swore they found in her apartment a man named "Theodore Dahl."

Mrs. Love has explained that the man in her apartment was Thor Dahl, who had gone there to lease the apartment. An employee of the house also was in the apartment at the time, according to Assistant Attorney Stanton.

Mrs. Love was discharged when arraigned.

RAIL MEN AWAIT DATA ON WAGE CUT

C. & N. W. Employees at Chicago and Madison Get Notice—None Received Here.

While reports from Chicago state that the Chicago & Northwestern railway Thursday served notice upon its employees in that city of a general cut in wages, and the order was also received in Madison. Officials of the road here stated Friday that they have heard nothing. A. L. Hommes, local agent, left for Chicago Friday morning, but on private business, it was stated.

A conference with branches of the service is called for April 4 at Chicago, notices having been received here. This meeting will include all but maintenance of way workers and laborers.

The Chicago reports state the Northwestern proposes discontinuing payment of time and a half for night and tenth hours. Maintenance of way forces will work eight or 10 hours as they desire, the extra time being pre-paid.

When President Finley of the road was here a few weeks ago he declared efforts will be made to set wages according to conditions in each locality. In response to an inquiry the local Chamber of Commerce for the single man, it believes have expenses amounting to $21.50 weekly to live comfortably, or $19.50 with rigid economy, making a decent living wage for an unmarried man $18 to $26 a month. With married men, the Chamber states the living cost would approximate $35 weekly for families of three to five persons. The Chamber pointed out that rentals here are high.

The district attorney's office explained that Dahl, with the fortune he was reported to have inherited from his father's whaling business, was wanted as a witness in connection with the charges of perjury against two detectives which grew out of the arrest of them by Mrs. Lillian P. Money is Like a Stream of Water

Did you ever stop to think of a stream of water—how it flows through your city or past your home—day after day and year after year. But the moment a dam is built and the water stopped—or even part of it—the stream becomes a constantly widening and deepening reservoir of power, with all its significant possibilities of usefulness.

Saving money is like building a dam across a stream. You can let your money come and go, as water in a stream, or by forethought you can stop some of the outgo and pile up for yourself week by week or month by month, the savings which in later years will add to your independence, to your ability to take advantage of new opportunities, and to the comfort you can get out of life.

There never was a time when it was so worth your while to save as now. The dollars put away today will buy just that much more when prices come down. Come in and let us work out some plan to take advantage of today's unusual opportunity for saving.

First Noble Grands Entertained—
Twenty members of the Rock County First Noble Grands Association spent an enjoyable day Thursday at the home of Mrs. Anna Wells, Oxfordville, where they were the guests at a luncheon. Following the luncheon a program consisting of readings by Mrs. Charles Sanborn and Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Charles Sanborn and a question box concerning the work of the association, was given.

Miss Nellie Hutton Home—Estelle Hutton returned from a six week's trip in Florida and eastern states. She spent a month in Miami, Florida, the most of the winter. On her return trip she spent some time at Lake Wales, St. Augustine, St. Augustine and Jacksonville, Florida; also New York City, Newark, N. J., Monmouth and Orange. She found Washington very delightful and the people most cordial, but this is the way she feels about Wisconsin.

They talk of California. They say the climate's grand; They sing of old New Hampshire, Also of "Old Land." They sing of dear old Georgia, And sunny Washington, Till sing of old Wisconsin, It's good enough for me.

In Nebraska there's a cyclone; In Kansas there's a flood; While down in old Missouri, They wade knee deep in mud. In Texas there's the terror Of submergence by the sea; In Wisconsin we have neither, It's good enough for me.

The east coast has its hurricanes; The west coast has its fogs; The north is full of snow and ice; The south is full of bugs. I've travelled Uncle Sam's domain, Though not across the sea; But life in old Wisconsin, Is good enough for me.

Wisconsin where the farmer's crop, Was never known to fail; When fruits and nuts in other states, We're plenty here for sale. But for living in Wisconsin, My reasons first are three: There's sunshine, health and happiness, It's good enough for me.

Real Estate Brokers' Licenses Are Revoked

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison.—Licenses of two Milwaukee brokers were revoked Friday by the Wisconsin Real Estate board, and two applications for licenses denied. Fraudulent handling of money was charged in a complaint against Walter Miller, who admitted making $2,950 out of a small transaction, and as a result his license was withdrawn. Alleged embezzlement of funds was the basis of the revoking of permit to the S. M. A. Eckstein company. Licenses were denied Ernst Leims and Richard Lehmann, both of Milwaukee.

The women of the St. Mary's church will hold a chicken supper in the church basement Tuesday evening, 5-8.

A Sweetheart at Thirty

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER CIV.
FRANCIS COMES
I confess I felt discouraged after reading Violet's letter. Was all my lonely month in the country to be wasted, after all? I so wanted to see Esther from the terrible rut that she was in, and I was so sure the best way to do it was to leave her for a little while, while I went back for a little and took up my life. And I failed in it—well, I did not like to think of failing. I had been so successful in other ways.

"They say that a woman's surroundings are everything in life to her. I did not believe it. I know now that it isn't so. My surroundings were Esther's, and I was living Esther's life, eating the same food, wearing the same dress, doing the same work, and hearing the same words. Esther did not want a difference. I was improving my life, and my family's, day by day. Esther had accepted things as they were.

I worked, but I kept myself busy. I gave up of the working dresses such as I used in the apartment in the city, and kept myself always presentable. Not that the neighbors were apt to drop in—they had as much work as I had, and I was not because Jim and James were in and out of the house unexpectedly, and I wanted always to look nice for them.

"It was a miracle!" James asked once, bringing up some wood for the fire, and seeing me in a negligee. "I was doing my nails in a short interval of rest between the midday dinner and the evening meal. I was not, and he sat and talked a while, coming out a little with his hopes and ambitions—poor enough now, though once he was ambitious enough.

"You don't like the farm work, why don't you get away from here?" I asked once.
"Oh, I mean to. I will some day," he answered.
But I knew then that he wouldn't—he would always mean to, but he never would take the thing in his own hands. He would never have the courage.

I revolutionized the sort of meals we had, so as to give myself more time for other things—and so as to give us less taxing diet. This pleased James, but I think Jim secretly longed for the hot bread, hot rolls, hot cakes and other forms of heated dough that had formed a large part of his meals. So, after the dinner cleared away, and I went for long tramps over the hills, ploughing our way through the snow and stopping to admire the falls, framed in icicles and resting down over ice-coated stones.

"I never thought snow-covered country was pretty—thought it was just white—dull you begin painting the colors in it," the boy said once. And together we named over the colors we could find—blues and mauves, purple shadows, yellow

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in the first year of high school and not allowed to receive company. My people want me to finish school before I receive company, but a boy friend of mine wishes to come to see me now.

The boy is about 19 years of age and does not go to school. For two months he has tried to go with me, but I could not receive company and he decided to quit. He is going with a friend of mine and somehow he won't have anything to say to me. I wish to talk to him, but I don't want to make myself common with him.

"I would like to know your advice," WORRIER R. HONEY.
Yet the boy goes. Until you are a junior at high school you are not young to receive company. Then, if your parents do not object, it would be all right for you to have company Friday and Saturday nights. The boy is evidently hurt because you cannot go with him. Be pleasant, but do not force conversations.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am deeply in love with a young man 20 years of age. I am 17. But I have recently found out that he loves another girl more than me. I have tried my very best to be pleasing and agreeable to him, but it seems of no use.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR JOE:

I'm always glad to hear you've made a sale, but still Joe seems to me if you can't sell Daisy Canned Soups without dragging in the baby, why I'd just as soon you didn't make the sale. I'm referring to what you told me about selling a case to that lady department store buyer by showing her the baby's picture.

Not that I'm jealous or anything Joe, because I'm not and never was and in fact I've always considered it would be the height of inconsistency to be jealous of a man as homely as you. Not that I personally don't value a man's good qualities above his absence of good looks, but there's less to be jealous of, that's all. In fact, a woman basins in having other women admire her husband's good qualities as long as they keep their minds off her good looks. But as I was saying, Joe, that don't apply to you and I trust you'll all the more for it.

So Joe that proves it's just for the mere principle of the thing that I don't like you to go showing the baby's picture as a selling argument, especially to women. I like to think of my child as a personal human being and not a reason for buying D. C. Soups. There's nothing, people or anything about it, to say the least. Not that I'm knocking your line Joe, but still I don't want anybody that covets D. C. Soups to think of my child in the same breath.

Well Joe at least there's one consolation in the fact that business is so boom, and that's this—you won't have hardly any income tax to pay, and from all I hear about men being off sore at having to pay big income taxes, you'll really have something to brag about, Joe. I wouldn't want to be in Rockefeller's shoes when the income tax man comes around, would you, Joe? In a good many ways, such as that, it's really almost a satisfaction to be poor, isn't it, Joe.

Your loving wife,

TESSIE.

USEFUL BIRD CITIZENS

BY J. HAMMOND BROWN

Copyright 1929, by The International Syndicate.

VESTER SPARROW.

Size—Slightly smaller than English sparrow.

Plumage—General effect is sparrow-like, rufous wings and white underparts with buffish tinge. Upperparts, brownish gray, streaked with black and buff. Wings, rufous with bright rufous covers. Tail, rufous, outer feathers mostly white. Underparts, white with breast and sides streaked with black and buff.

Habitat—Breeds from lower Canada south to Nebraska, Missouri, Kentucky, Virginia and North Carolina and west to the plains. Winters from southern part of breeding range to the Gulf coast as far west as middle Texas.

Here's a singer at vespers.

If the melodious outburst of the Song Sparrow may be taken as an anthem to the glories of the sun, the sweet, plaintive refrain of the Vesper Sparrow is certainly typical of twilight and hence, his most popular theme. It is from twilight until sundown that his song is most often noticed, but this does not mean that he is quiet during the rest of the day for despite the fact that his is one of the last bird voices we hear before nightfall, he is up and about with the earliest and nothing whatsoever can keep him quiet all the day long.

No garden home nor woodland castle for this sweet little singer. He is pre-eminently a bird of the grassy fields and so is called the Grass Finch by many. Look for him in the pastures where the cattle graze. There he feeds, sings his pastoral roundelay and is happy with his mate.

Insects and wild berries form his chief food and all day long he is kept busy exploring each blade of meadow grass. They place their eggs on the ground without any attempt at concealment, but the eggs are so colored and blotched that they are very hard to detect.

The Vesper Sparrow is not a bird neighbor in the sense of companionship. However, like the sweet tolling of vespers bells as they come reverberating across the meadows, at twilight, his song becomes a part of your daily life, and when the vesper chorus is missing from the pasture lot in the early fall, it leaves a void that refuses to be filled.

Your friends use it—you don't know it.

has taken a girl somewhere? If so, what should the girl say?

GREEN.

It would be better to have one of the teachers at school, or some other older person, accompany you when you ride to the neighboring town. Whether the couple would be doing right or wrong would depend entirely upon their own conduct. They would give people a chance to talk however.

Yes, it is correct for the boy to say he has enjoyed the evening. The girl should say she also has enjoyed it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Does silk cut, friendship? And is it all right for a fellow to accept money from a girl when he is not working and has no money?

LARK.

I have never heard of the superstition that silk cuts friendship. A "fellow" should not accept money from a girl. If he is proud he will get along on what he has and even so hungry before he will take money from a girl.

What Shall I Do?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Seeing Miss Pugh— I am 18, and have been corresponding for the past three months with a sailor boy; although I have never seen him, he asked me to become his wife. At first he set the date for July, when he gets a furlough, but now he wants me to wait until he gets discharged in October. Should I accept or decline his kind offer?—Pauline M.

Maybe it isn't such a kind offer, Pauline—how do you know? He's a brave lad, at any rate, to ask any girl he never saw to become his wife and travel through life with him forever and ever, isn't he? But don't do it. I'll tell you what—write him that you can't accept his kind offer this time, but that you'll keep it in mind and that if he wants to come and let you see how you like him when that furlough happens, why maybe you'll promise to marry him in October. Take my word for it, Pauline, that's the thing to do this time.

Who Speaks First?

"Dear Miss Page: When I meet a young man, is it proper for me to speak first or wait for him? When you are introduced to a young man, is it proper to shake hands or bow? My brother wants to know why young ladies when an old man passes them or a man who is not dressed up in his best clothes—Alice."

The woman always speaks first, Alice, and it is sufficient just to bow when introduced to a young man. Tell your brother that young ladies don't always act like that—only when they are very rude. Evidently he is referring to some silly young things who haven't been brought up very nicely.

RECIPES FOR A DAY

Shortcake Dough—Sift together

two cups of flour—pastry flour is best—a half teaspoon of salt, four level teaspoons baking powder, a half teaspoon butter and a cup of rich milk. Mix, then press the dough into two buttered layer-cake pans and bake in a brisk oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Chicken Shortcake—Select young tender boiling chicken, short and thick through, have the thighs drawn from the legs, singe, draw and wash

the chicken thoroughly in lukewarm water. Joint the fowl and boil until tender, adding to the water an onion, a stalk of celery and a bunch of herbs.

When tender, lift the chicken and remove the meat from the bones, cutting the chicken up coarsely. Put the bones back into the water and cook down one-half. Season, thicken slightly, and strain. Put enough of the gravy over the chicken to cover

it. The rest is to serve in the gravy boat.

When ready to assemble the cake have the chicken hot and proceed as directed. Garnish the cake with pineapple slices that have been dipped in egg, then in seasoned crumbs, and fry.

Apricot Fluff—One cup cooked apricots, one teaspoonful pineapple or other preferred flavoring, two cups whipped cream, one-third cup of powdered sugar. Drain the cooked apricots of all the juice, then mash to a pulp. Whip cream until firm, but not too stiff; add sugar and flavoring, then fold in the apricot pulp.

Line sherbet glasses with split lady fingers and fill with mixture; garnish with maraschino cherries. Chill before serving.

PACKERS' PEACE PLEASES HARDING

New Administration Gratiified With Success of Labor Mediation.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington.—President Harding was a happy man Thursday. His administration had settled the first big industrial controversy that had threatened to disturb the economic peace of the country. Mr. Harding met the representatives of both the packers and their employees and expressed his gratification over the amicable outcome. Secretaries Davis, Hoover and Wallace of the departments of labor, commerce and agriculture, who handled the negotiations for the government, were there, too, and it was really an unusual sight—employer and employee joyful over the result.

Broadly speaking, there is a deeper significance in the settlement of the packer troubles than appears on the surface. Members of the cabinet were careful to point out that some of the papers gave a wrong impression when they endeavored to interpret the policy of the Harding administration as one favoring wage cuts. The reduction in wages in this case was entirely a matter between both parties to the controversy and was neither suggested by the administration nor pressed by it as a point of special interest to the government.

Principle Laid Down.—But there was a principle laid down which may be of guidance in industrial disputes in the future and which has a world of meaning to the business world in America. It is simply that union labor is not unwilling to accept reductions in wages if there is no attempt at the same time to use the economic situation as a means of breaking down the standards which union labor has acquired for itself during the war.

The packers say they could have stood a strike. The men naturally didn't want to be thrown out of employment at this time, but they would have endured great sacrifices if the packers had insisted upon abrogating the eight hour day and other advantages which have nothing to do with compensation, but which have a great deal to do with conditions of work.

Six Months Truce.—Of course, it cannot be said that permanent peace has been attained as between the packers and their employees. A more accurate description of the settlement would be to call it a six months truce, but the psychological effect of the agreement is the confident hope that a recurrence of controversy may be handled later on in the same way as it was this time.

For the next six months at any rate the employer accepted a reduction in pay of about eight cents an hour while the packers agreed not to make any further wage reductions without submitting them to arbitration.

Grant 8-Hour Day.

The packers granted the eight hour day, which had previously been the standard, and agreed to submit any changes in wage hours to the arbitrator, Judge Ainsworth, who has been virtually the dictator in between employees and employers in the packing industry since the war. The Ainsworth agreement, which became effective in 1917, was to have ended a year after the proclamation of peace between the United States and Germany. The uncertainty about the date has caused controversy, and while the packers insisted the war was over, union labor thought that technically war conditions remained.

The truth of the matter is that labor wanted to retain the advantages of the Ainsworth agreement and the packers wanted to get rid of it. Finally, the understanding was reached to continue the agreement for another six months, after which it will be definitely terminated and a new agreement will have to be written. The controversy may break out anew then. Still the men think they will be in a better position at that time to insist upon terms similar to the Ainsworth agreement, then they are today. The packers have their own views on the subject. Meanwhile there is an industrial truce. Both sides are happy and expectant.

Put Confidence in Harding.—President Harding and his cabinet maintained throughout the conference of employees and employers. Union labor had a chance to sue up the Harding administration in an industrial dispute and didn't find it so "reactionary" after all. Secretary of Labor Davis didn't appear to have all the background necessary to handle an effective mediator in the packing industry, but he showed a sympathetic understanding of the problems of the workingman, while at the same time he called upon Secretaries Hoover and Wallace and experts who know the packing business intimately, to give him advice. The administration's next industrial problem will probably be the railroad-controversy, and there, too, it is not so much a question of high wages as labor standards that the workingmen want preserved. If any administration policy can be gleaned from the packer episode, it is that President Harding is anxious to maintain equilibrium between capital and labor by preventing employers from taking too much advantage of the present economic situation in their attempts not only to reduce wages, but to break up union organizations and eliminate the standards won by labor through years of bitter struggle.

GLAD SHE READ THE NEWSPAPER

"The other day," began Mrs. Bessie Schaefer, 1222 N. Wis. St., Racine, Wis., whose husband is an assembler at the Case plant. "I read how a relief lady, who suffered as I did, got relief through taking Kozak. Severe, throbbing headaches, nervousness, gastritis and sleeplessness, were my chief complaints. I had no appetite and always felt languid. Today, as a result of taking Kozak, my troubles are gone. I sleep eight hours regularly, awaken feeling refreshed and headaches and nervous spells are a thing of the past. Kozak gave me no side effects and everything digests right. Certainly, I recommend Kozak."

FRECKLES

March Worst Month for This Trouble

—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist and apply a little of it right and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if Othine fails.

Beloit Wallops Stars--Schaeffer on Next Elks' Card

LOCAL LADS ARE OUTCLASSED AND LOSE, 40 TO 16

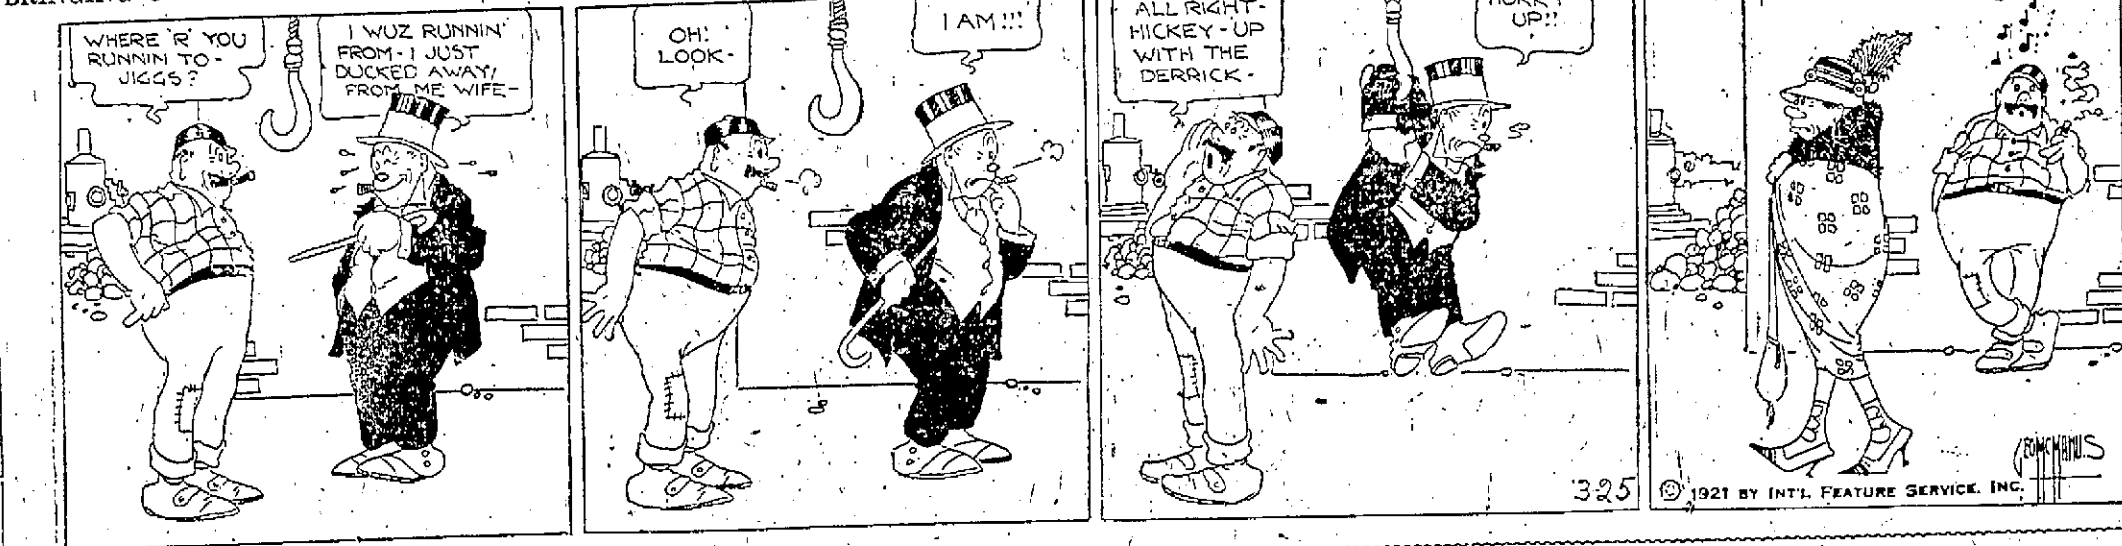

Despite the fact that Howard Bond, former member of the Chicago Boosters played with the Friday night local All Stars went down to territory defeat at the hands of the 21st Separate company at Beloit, 40 to 16. The Gateway city soldiers showed no mercy.

Although the first quarter ended in a tie at 4-4, the Stars were unable to take the lead. They were guarded too tightly while their own defense broke down. Blanchard, star last year at Wisconsin, was the turnkey for Beloit. Blazer for the Stars. They will come here for a return game in the next few weeks.

Upholds Receiver for $250,000-Friar Rock

The appellate court of a New York upheld the authority of a receiver appointed to take charge of Friar Rock, $250,000 station, and return him to John B. Madgey, half owner.

TRAINING CAMP JOYS

The Detroit Americans here to break camp at San Antonio Friday. Every man on the team is reported in excellent condition and Manager Ty Cobb is elated by the pre-season showing.

The St. Louis Americans will meet the New York Giants at New Orleans Sunday, substituting for the New Orleans Southern association team which plays the Giants Saturday.

"Cotton" Tierney, second baseman of the Pittsburgh Nationals put his home run total up to nine Thursday at Hot Springs, when he smashed out.

Cuffs—With or Without. Trousers will be worn long, as they have been during the past year, but cuffs are coming back. Styles must seem to be in the middle of a change, so the clothes on either side are proper and popularity seems to be divided between them. So it is with cuffs.

Black silk socks will still be worn the most, while brown and blue will also be popular.

The new shoes are of all kinds through the light browns now take the lead. The last vestiges of the brogue are being shown. The tendency seems to be to get away from the clumsiness of the brogue and have the shoe that is pointed too much. Two tones of brown making a sport shoe effect are popular. Cordovan and calfskin are the most popular leathers.

Collars Are Lower. Collars are lower than ever, coming as close to the height of the collar band as possible without the showing. Several new models in low, soft collar are appearing and are being rapidly picked up by the younger generation. But still, low collars still continue to sell the best. These styles permit the small knot of the tie to sit snugly. In the matter of neckwear black still takes the lead over all colors, after being the most popular color for three years. There are variations, though, which make a close run with the black. Any dark color looks well in a narrow tie, which seems to be all the rage either in knit goods or in a suiter material. A narrow stripe, called the "candy stripe" in any bright colors can be worn if selected with good taste, matching the suit and shirt neck. A simple pin, some stone or cameo, looks well in these black and striped ties.

Shirts More Conservative. More conservative colors are being worn in shirts, even in the silk shirts, while mudras and cords are rapidly approaching silk for popularity. Stripes in any soft color will be worn most while the old standard white, will look as well as ever.

Narrow brims on hats of a sandstone and light brown are popular. The brims are worn turned up all the way around. Caps and hats seem to divide the popularity, and those who do not look well in a hat can always find a cap that is becoming in either the trend of the hat or the color of the hat. A top-coat, in any of the various materials and colors offered will complete the outfit for Easter morn to the complete with the appearance of his wife or "fair lady" in her new spring duds.

Mike O'Dowd.

44 Teams in Pin Meet Opening Here Saturday

Forty-four teams are on the books to take part in the Southern Wisconsin Bowling tournament which opens at the West Side alleys here Saturday afternoon, according to an announcement made Friday. Ten of these are local outfits. Ten of them are from Madison, 20 from Rockford, four from Watertown, two from Milwaukee, and one each from Fond du Lac, Lake Mills, Delavan, Lake Geneva, Clinton Junction and Stoughton.

Richardson, manager of the meet, declares that a score of teams from Chicago may bowl if satisfactory dates can be arranged.

Delavan to Open. The first team to take to the drives will be the K. P. Five of Delavan, a fast bunch of pin busters. They will be followed by Garlick's Boosters from Lake Mills, rated as a heavy traveling team. Then will follow Sunday afternoon and evening. Five men, doubles, singles and all events will be rolled.

Friday night and Saturday morning a crew of men will work on the alleys, thoroughly scraping and cleaning them to conform to A. B. C. rules and regulations. Every effort will be made to eliminate any possible grooves.

Open Campaign Friday for Funds for City Ball Team

With a goal of at least 1,000, the membership drive of the Tractor City Athletic association to finance the city baseball club, formerly the Samson Tractors, will be started Friday afternoon. An urgent call for all fans and sportsmen to get back to the team and aid it with their pockets is being made by John E. Kennedy, chairman of the committee to put the proposition across.

Subscription lists have been left at strategic places. Here, fans may sign up promises to pay or may give their money right over the counter and get membership cards in the organization in return. Memberships cost $2.00.

The places where the lists have been left are:

- Delaney & Langdon's; Grabe & Newman's; Coliseum billiard hall; Dalton & Leary's Sweet Shop; Bob Hockett's Star Store; Murphy's cigar store; Club billiard hall; Black Cat billiard hall; Spaulding's billiard hall; and the West Side bowling alley.

In addition 20 boosters will bring the matter up in the various clubs and lodges and business houses. "We're ready to go and the house is mighty good," said Kennedy.

News was given out Friday that Harry Holland, second baseman, has been given work with the Tractor City team. The matter of employment is being cared for rapidly.

Two circuit blows in a game between the first and second divisions. Babe Adams, veteran twirler, demonstrated mid-season form when he held the regulars to a single hit in three innings.

Manager Tris Speaker called the game after the fifth inning Thursday, when his first line infielders faced the Yankees. The youngsters allowed their opponents seven stolen bases in that inning.

The first of a three game series with Wichita Falls team of Texas league, Friday starts the closing schedule of the Chicago White Sox training season.

Pete Schneider shook the nerve of Virgil Cheeves, Cub recruit pitcher Thursday in a game against Vernon, when he "led the bats over the left field fence, and the next six batters scored four runs. Cheeves settled down in the next round and held Vernon while the Cubs drove in six runs for a victory. The Cubs lost Los Angeles Friday.

Cincinnati will play Dallas Friday. The Reds break camp Friday. The Philadelphia Nationals dealt a bitter defeat to the University of Florida in a game at Gainesville Thursday, 18 to 4. They meet again Friday when Manager Donovan will lead the collegians a pitcher.

Ernest Nettles, a recruit of the Boston Red Sox pitched nine innings against the regulars Thursday at Hot Springs, defeating them 8 to 7.

The New York Nationals and Philadelphia Athletics meet at Lake Charles, La. Friday. Manager George H. Grubb of the Philadelphia team used first string moundmen against the Atlanta Southern association team Thursday, winning a 9 to 0 shutout.

Advocates Grid Team for City

Advocating the formation of a city football team here next fall, Howard Bond, Chicago, a former member of the Jimmy Murphy's Janesville baseball team a couple of years ago, dropped into the Gazette office Thursday afternoon. Bond has been playing football and basketball during the past season with the Boosters of Chicago, appearing several times against the Fairies at Beloit.

If anything is done here in football, Bond has stated that he be considered either as player or manager. "He believes that a team can be organized and pushed that will put the sport on its feet here and pay for itself."

Speaking about the element of injury to players, which has been the drawback to most semi-pro football teams, he stated that the Boosters were not affected in that way last year. Injury, he thinks, is more or less a matter of luck.

It is his opinion that the sport could find a large following in this city.

Athletic Stars to Speak at Blues' Banquet

Members of the M-Y club of the local Y. M. C. A. will banquet the basketball squad of Janesville high school at the "Y" at 6:30 Friday night. Two athletes, stars in their particular games, will speak. One is Harry Grubb, who featured on the gridiron for Northwestern university last fall, and an army pal of A. E. Burghman, physical director of the local "Y". The other is Eddie Williams, Edgerton, well known here for his basketball prowess, especially during the past season with the Badgers.

The public is invited. High school pupils are especially urged to attend.

Pick Superior to Win State Basket Meet

Madison, Wis.—Superior defeated Madison, 13 to 8, with quality playing. In the opening games of the Wisconsin state high school basketball tournament Thursday, indications are that they may win the title again this year.

Waukesha, Menominee, Superior, LaCrosse and Appleton still are in the running. The championship series, accompanied by consolation series games, will be played Friday morning and night and Saturday morning, afternoon and night. The title contest between the two strongest teams will be held Saturday night.

GLASSY WINDUP BEING PLANNED; CLUB MADE $500

Omaha Kid Schaeffer, the batter who made such a good impression in the first night card of Elks here in knocking out Roy Meyers, will be on the next card, April 27. If agreement can be reached with his manager, Ike Bernstein, it was announced Friday. The windup being planned will bring another classy couple here to give both a real exhibition of boxing plus a battery of punches.

Along with the announcement came the statement that the profits of the last show amounted to $500.78. This will be put into the Elks' fund for a new building to be erected within the next few years on the Elks' property on the corner of South Bluff and Court streets. Initial expenses for the opening night, which will be limited to others to follow, will permit the club to realize $800 a card, it is said.

emphatic. He calls that part of the treaty "blackmail by Japan." Negotiations were held in secrecy and the secrecy made it possible for Japan to threaten to leave the conference if the demands were not acceded to. Under this pressure the Council of Four, which included Mr. Lansing, agreed to the giving of those rights which Germany had before the war and which rights had ceased when China entered the war on the allied side. A protest by Gen. Tasker Bliss, Henry White and Mr. Lansing was sent to the president stating that to support the claim of Japan was to abandon Chinese democracy to the domination of Japanese imperialism.

In reading this chapter of Mr. Lansing's book the indignation is unconsciously aroused at this betrayal of China. The German rights in Shantung were granted by China, and so long as China was at peace with Germany the rights existed and could be conveyed by Germany. But China had entered the war against Germany and it was clear that any rights given by her to Germany had expired and the title was again vested in China. If war so determined and Germany lost, as she did, and Germany was blackmailed, the Council of Four, gave to Japan what rightfully belonged to China, and it was this act that so aroused the indignation of Gen. Tasker Bliss that he wrote the letter to the President, in which act Mr. Lansing and Mr. Henry White concurred.

Victimized by European Diplomats. This is an incident among several cited as showing how thoroughly the president was victimized by the far more clever diplomats of the European nations. Mr. Lansing had been originally objected to the president's going to Paris, but had been overruled.

Mr. Lansing says in his notes on the occasion of the abandonment of the American policy of open commerce: "China has been abandoned to Japanese rapacity. A democratic territory has been given over to an autocratic government. The president has conceded to Japan all that it not more, than she ever hoped to obtain."

President Compelled. One of the Chinese delegates said that word came to him from the president that "he had been compelled to accede to Japan's demand in order to save the League of Nations." Some of the American commissioners wanted to resign when the Shantung outrage became known. The idea expressed by Mr. Lansing that Japan would have signed the treaty and accepted the League of Nations in spite of her threat was not held by Mr. Wilson who stated to a Congressional committee that in his judgment the signatures could not have been obtained if he had not given Shantung to Japan.

So closes the betrayal of China. In spite of pronounced notions of expediency it may be said that the saving of the whole League plan was scarcely worth the establishment of so grave a wrong to an always friendly nation.

League Only Vaguely Mental. From Mr. Lansing's book revealing the history of the Peace conference as it never has been before, one gathers that President Wilson was willing and did sacrifice everything to the League of Nations and gave up on each point until the treaty carried the League project. That League plan was not, says Mr. Lansing, the work of Mr. Wilson. When the president went to Paris first he had only a rough draft of a League. It was not the League plan as finally adopted, says Mr. Lansing. He states that from the time the war involved America the president had in mind some remedial action that would make wars like the one in which we were participating in which we were participating again, Mr. Lansing very truthfully says that it is his belief that at the time and even since and now, the people are of the opinion that measures should have been or should be taken still to carry into effect some international action that would prevent war. But that does not change the opposed opinion that he afterwards reached in reference to the League of Nations as adopted and which came as the result of trading and trafficking with the Council of Four.

Use of Force. The cleavage was on old lines and represented the two ideas of how war could be prevented by methods either judicial or political. Mr. Lansing shows in reference to a speech made by the president in 1916 that Mr. Wilson had erased all reference to force. "By January, 1917, he had become convinced that the use of force was the practical method of checking aggression." Later, the president asked Col. House to put the plan in writing and this is the draft that was carried to Paris. It is stated, says Mr. Lansing, that Col. House is the real author of the covenant as it went to the conference.

Why It Was Impossible. The secretary of state was opposed to a covenant that carried force as a maintainer of peace and had written the president to that effect as far back as 1916. For that reason Mr. Lansing was not consulted when the president changed his attitude toward the use of physical force. Both the British and French suggestions as to a League emphasized judicial settlement. Of the League's draft Mr. Lansing wrote, "It has in it too much altruistic operation. I am sure it is impractical."

He objected to the positive guaranty of integrity of territory as resting too heavily on "recognition of dominant coercive power." The overlordship of strong nations was too much insisted upon.

Difference of Opinion. Enough of this to show the differences that had arisen at the very inception of the treaty negotiations.

Mr. Lansing submitted a substitute draft of a League which recognized the Monroe doctrine, the power of congress as to declaration of war, the lack of power in any treaty to provide for the use of the army and navy of the United States to compel compliance with a treaty or to make good a guaranty. In other words the president had in front of him before he began negotiation the very sense of a treaty containing and covering the points, whose omission became the subject of the bitter controversy between congress and the president. Later the Lansing position was justified by the votes of the people against the attitude of the president and the Wilson League.

Easy to Accept the Coolidge Draft. But the president having repudiated the doctrine of the equality of nations and being convinced of the necessity of physical force found it easy to afterward accept the Smoot and Coolidge plan for a League. The details leading up to the final acceptance of the draft as first presented to the American people and afterward changed in part to meet the supreme objection in reference to the Monroe doctrine, are too long to recite in this review.

He tells much of the separate defensive treaty with France and believed that Clemenceau had forced from Mr. Wilson as a price for accepting the covenant of the League. This treaty, says Mr. Lansing, in itself discredited Article X. The League covenant in the matter of the and its lack resulted in the treaty self-determination principle was discredited when Germany was refused permission to join with Austria. Mr. Lansing says this phrase of the president's was, he considered, loaded with dynamite.

Mandates a Selfish Deceit. In the chapter on mandates Mr. Lansing finds the system a selfish device benefiting material interests. He explains in another chapter the statements made by William Bullitt before a congressional committee in which he shows the half-truths on which the startling revelations of his attitude were made.

Summing up the case it would appear that from the beginning as the secretary says Paris and its treaty there was no American program which only the exigency of a quick peace induced Mr. Lansing and his two companions, who were the American Peace Commissioners, Gen. Tasker Bliss and Henry White to sign.

Secrecy Curbed Trouble. The secrecy surrounding the making of the document was fruitful of trouble and covered up much that would not have been written into the treaty had the negotiations been of the form of "open covenants openly arrived at."

That the president consulted "no one of his three commissioners" in the making of the treaty though he had appointed them for that purpose. That he insisted that a League Covenant should be drafted and agreed upon in the short time of 11 days before he sailed and that this alone caused the controversy later to arise as it was not time to thoroughly discuss the document.

That the League covenant instead of being an agency created solely for the prevention of international wars, was converted into an agency to carry out the terms of peace.

That the League idealism succumbed to a reversion to cynical materialism. That the Shantung gift to Japan was abandonment of the last shred of principle we had enunciated in making the treaty.

And finally that the President, blinded by his idealism was thoroughly imposed upon by the intrigues and selfish nations of the old world. He saw only a League of Nations and though he, the President may have been disappointed in the document that resulted and though in order to obtain it he had been obliged to sink his idealism and take the kind of diplomatic materialism that born in secrecy, had damned Europe into war for a thousand years.

Why the President was Fooled. It was because he wanted to see an immediate peace, and to that end was willing to wait for a League of Nations to be formed when the heat of conflict was further away and the errors of war and reverses were less fierce, and because he objected to mandates, and the secret meetings that made the Fiume episode and the Shantung outrage possible, that Mr. Lansing was charged with having a mind that did not willingly go along with his "the president," that he was asked to resign.

There is an attempt to glorify himself but one may have a better perspective of the treaty negotiations, if any can be obtained from a

How To Revitalize Wornout Exhausted Nerves

Your nerve power depends on plenty of good, rich, red blood of the kind that organic iron—Nuxated Iron—helps make. Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is free just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings. Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach; it is an entirely different thing from ordinary metallic iron. It quickly helps make rich, red blood, revivifies wornout, exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. Over 4,000,000 people annually are suffering from lack of organic iron. Always insist upon having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

TURKS DEFEAT GREEK OFFENSIVE

(By Associated Press.)

Constantinople—Turkish official reports declared the Turkish nationalists east of the Smyrna district have attacked and defeated the Greeks, who began an offensive on Wednesday. It is said 1,700 Greeks were taken prisoner and that the nationalists captured 20 guns. The Turks at first retired before the Greek advance, but being reinforced launched a counter offensive.

It was claimed in Greek circles here Thursday that Eski-Shehr, one of the objectives of the offensive, had been taken, but this rumor has not been confirmed. The Turks have closed the American college at Marivan in the Vilayet of Sivas, charging that the president of the institution favored the establishment of a Greek republic in western Asia Minor.

Express Co. May Charge Storage

Because of increasing volume of "on hand" matter, the American Railway Express company has started a campaign to inform shippers of methods to lower the number of packages never delivered. The company declares that its service is handicapped by this class of matter.

These packages cannot be delivered, it is said, because addresses may be inaccurate; the consignee may refuse acceptance; while the shipper at the same time refuses to permit its return; or the consignee may not be at the address given or the mark on the shipment may be so illegible that delivery is difficult.

In the matter of storing shipments while shipper and consignee argue points of acceptance, the company warns that it may be necessary in the near future to charge for storage unless the situation improves.
